THE CONTAGION HOSPITAL

Protest Against Its Location on Columbia Heights.

A Memorial Sent to Congress Today—Reasons Urged Against the Proposed Site.

Mr. Cannon of Illinois has offered in the House a memorial prepared by citizens and property owners of Columbia Heights relative to the location of the contagion hospital. The memorial is as follows:

Text of the Memorial.

The undersigned, citizens and taxpayers of the District of Columbia, on behalf of the various interests represented by them and in their own behalf, do most solemnly protest against the establishment of an "Isolated Hospital" for contagious diseases in the block bounded by Bismarck and Princeton streets, 7th street and Sherman avenue, as recommended by the honorable Commissioners of this District in their last annual report.

The necessity of a contagious disease hospital is recognized by every citizen of the District, and we admit that private interests should not stand in the way of a great public necessity, but should always be subordinated to the public good.

Conceding this to be true, we submit that it is the duty of persons charged with a public duty to discharge the same in that way that will be least destructive or detrimental to both public and private interests, and in this particular case it would be neither wise nor just on the part of the honorable Commissioners, or of Congress itself, to locate this hospital in any part of the District that would cause or cause unnecessary depreciation of values and decrease in the public revenue, unless no other suitable location can be found, where such depreciation would be comparatively small.

That part of the District contiguous to the proposed site, and which would be immediately affected by the location of such hospital thereon, is the only section that has shown a steady advance in values throughout the entire time of the present financial depression, and the records of the Inspector of buildings will show that more money has been expended within a few years of this section than in any other part of the District, and that the value of the property has increased to a great extent, and that in addition thereto there are hundreds of thousands of dollars ready to go into this section in the early part of 1896; and further, that of all the money so invested in the last two years there is scarcely a dollar that would have been expended if this hospital had been established where recommended by the honorable Commissioners. We attach hereto the affidavits of a few individuals, which are enough to show the truth of these statements.

In our opinion, the establishment of such a hospital at this spot means the stopping of the development of one of the most beautiful, healthful and rapidly growing sections of the District, the destruction of values of private property and the health of the community, if a building limit of forty feet should be established. Ninety-nine people out of every hundred disagree with

TO BE DEDICATED SUNDAY

The New Building of the Epworth Methodist Episcopal Church South.

Description of the Handsome Memorial Windows—How the Church Has Developed From a Mission.

It was announced that the new Epworth M. E. Church South would be dedicated during the holidays, but an unforeseen delay in the delivery of glass prevented the ceremony from taking place then, but on Sunday during the services, which begin at 11 o'clock, the dedication will take place. At 9:30 in the morning there will be the usual Sunday morning service. At 11 Bishop Alpheus W. Wilson of the Southern Methodist Episcopal Church is to deliver the sermon, and at night he will preach again. The Epworth League is also to hold a rally in the lecture room in the evening. The dedication exercises embrace special music and services, but the dedication proper is performed by the officers of the church stepping forward to the chancel and presenting the church to the minister, in this case the bishop, who requests the congregation to stand up while he pronounces the sentence of dedication.

Handsome Memorial Windows.

The new edifice is one of the prettiest church buildings of its size in Washington, and cost something approaching $20,000. A description of the building appeared in The Star recently. There was no account given of the memorial windows, as they were not then in position. They form a striking feature of the interior. On the 7th street or west side is a window in memory of Rev. Samuel Rogers, D.D., presiding elder of this district when the church was established. The distinctive feature of this memorial is a cross and crown in the center. Corresponding to it on the same side is one to Rev. Samuel W. Haddaway, at one time chaplain of Congress and the founder of Epworth. The symbol in this window is an ascending dove, typical of the spirit. Francis A. Lutz, a prominent member of the M. E. Church South, and who died at Leesburg, Va., is remembered by a handsome window in the design of which appears an anchor, cross and open Bible, with a scroll on which are inscribed the words, "Faith, Hope and Charity."

On the A street side is a window to Mrs. Ada Warren Jones, wife of Rev. J. C. Jones, a former pastor of the church, and who died during his pastorate. The symbol is a descending dove with an olive branch. The other window on A street side is that to the memory of Thomas J. Magruder, well known throughout the south as a prominent Methodist Sunday school worker, and who is thus remembered by his brother-in-law, Rev. W. B. Butler, who is the pastor of the church. This is to Robert S. Lucy, S. Bertrand S. and Stuart S. Ashby, the figures in the center panel being an anchor, cross and open Bible, with a scroll on which are inscribed the words, "Faith, Hope and Charity."

Over the pulpit is the largest of the memorial windows. This is to Robert S. Lucy, S. Bertrand S. and Stuart S. Ashby, the figures in the center panel being an anchor, cross and open Bible, with a scroll on which are inscribed the words, "Faith, Hope and Charity."
